Arizona Supreme Court Hires New Communications Officer

PHOENIX – The Arizona Supreme Court and Administrative Office of the Courts named Alberto Rodriguez as the Court’s Communications Officer. Mr. Rodriguez joins the Court following 11 years of service as the State Bar of Arizona’s Public Relations and Marketing Manager. During his time with the State Bar, Rodriguez provided member communications and community outreach, regularly interacting with English and Spanish-language media outlets in TV, radio, web, and print.

Mr. Rodriguez’s experience includes developing strategic marketing, mass communications, and public relations. His roles included news releases, media advisories, spokesperson duties, and responding to public records requests. Rodriguez played key roles in the State Bar’s access to justice programs, such as a speakers bureau, the Lawyers on Call public service program, multiple legal advice phone banks, and Law Day Legal Aid clinics. He has co-chaired the Arizona Supreme Court’s Public Information and Messaging subcommittee of the Arizona Commission on Access to Justice since 2019. Mr. Rodriguez’s prior experience includes running a public relations firm and communications roles with the Arizona Hispanic Chamber of Commerce, Valley of the Sun United Way, and with local Spanish-language radio.

Mr. Rodriguez begins his new duties with the Court on October 18, succeeding Aaron Nash, who was appointed Director of the Court’s Certification and Licensing Division.
