

Court of Appeals, Division I

Court Remains Open During Public Health Emergency

The Court of Appeals, Division One remains open for regular business hours during the Governor's Stay at Home Order. Here are a few tips about how to work with the court without coming to the courthouse:

- The requirement that attorneys to file electronically through TurboCourt (<https://www.turbocourt.com/>) remains in effect.
- Self-represented litigants may file electronically through TurboCourt (fees apply) or may file by sending filings through the US Mail.
- Fee Waiver/Deferral Applications generally are filed at the front counter or through the mail, but during this time may be filed electronically using TurboCourt.
- Questions can be addressed to the court by phone 602.452.6700 or email inform@appeals.az.gov (note that filings cannot be accepted through email).
- Electronic copies of non-sensitive documents may be requested through the inform@appeals.az.gov email account.
- Due dates may be extended for good cause due to circumstances surrounding the pandemic. A motion must be filed in each case requesting an extension and explaining the cause for consideration.
- Information regarding case status can be found on the court's website.
