Judge

I am writing this letter to let you know how your ruling in my case has now ruined the life of an older man, and severely hampered the life of a young

You apparently didn't do real well in math, or you just didn't look at the expense sheet I filled out. With what I earn and my social security I was going in the hole per month by having the of my social security going to my ex-wife. You now have upped that to per month. Where do you suppose I am going to get that money? You also must not have listened to my testimony pertaining to my becoming old in and at a point real soon I will no longer be able to work due to it becoming physically too hard.

I thought it was crystal clear that I am, and always have been the sole support of Not always by choice, but when his mother refused to pay for anything I had no choice. You obviously didn't believe me in any way, and bought totally in to what my ex-wife said. She never paid any thing for yet you say she is not obligated to pay for any of the private school that she agreed to send Maybe you can clear up for me what the term "child support" means. Because you certainly have a different definition than any person I know. It is supposed to mean help support your child, not use it as you like (like maybe drugs). That may not be your fault, maybe it is the state and the judicial system that seems to have a very warped definition of "child support"

I put the filing of this case off for one year so could turn and be able to testify in court. When that time came, you did not allow to be in court and testify, or refute the things mother said. Shame on you! You used over one quarter of the hour we had (how antiquated is that) by being on the phone with something you should have done on your own time. By doing that you did not allow us to cross exam my ex-wife or refute the things she said, even though her side got to cross exam me. Doesn't seem to fair does it? By not allowing there you did not allow to look into your eyes and refute mothers lies. That didn't bother you as you bought it all like a cheap suit. How interesting!

I took on a two week trip last summer checking out colleges back east. That trip cost me about all of which went on a credit card as I live paycheck to paycheck with no savings or retirement. His mother contributed absolutely zero for that trip. Shows how interested she is in future. Are you starting to get the gist of the story here? Probably not.

Thanks to your ruling in this case, instead of going to the College at ASU, he will now be going to Thanks so much! I will now be losing my home to foreclosure (hopefully will take a few months) as I will no longer be able to make the payment. Oh whoa is me! I'm sure that ruins your day. I bought this home so I could have something to leave to but you have ended that dream.

In all your infinite wisdom did you ever once ask yourself why this woman never complained for the years I couldn't pay the full child support or when I stopped paying because I had no job or money. She waited all the way to the middle of to go to Did that ever enter your mind? Let me enlighten you on that one. I threatened to expose her father to for the child molesting pedophile that he is. The next day she went to So all the trash she told you was just trash, but of course you bought it hook, line and sinker. You should also know that she is a meth addict and has been for years. I'm sure her drug dealer is very thankful to you for giving her another to spend with him. You should have noticed that with her gaunt face and thin build. And thanks to you she has an additional a month to buy more. You are probably saying I am just saying this to make her look bad, which she is. And that is okay because there isn't much more you can do to me now, except send me to jail and give me 2 meals and a placed to sleep. And just to make things perfectly clear, when was tardy in the first quarter of , do you think it was because his mother's alarm clock didn't work, or maybe another reason. You be the judge of that. And the real reason she pulled him out of was not because she couldn't afford it as she told you. No it was because she was mad at me as she has been most of the time. And if you bought it that she couldn't afford the school, that would indicate that she did owe the money and agreed to the sharing of costs when we decided to enroll there. Do you get it yet.

The woman has told on more than one occasion that she could get a job tomorrow in her old field, but she wants to be self employed and not work for any one. And why should she, you are allowing her to legally steal from me.

I will leave you with this last thought. I have only two wishes left in life now. The first being I can only hope she OD'S. The second is that someday somebody screws you as bad as you have screwed me.

And understand that I will be sending copies of this letter to any and every body I think that may expose you for who you are, and that is certainly not a fair minded judge in this wonderful county of
